David Buch's informative volume is the first modern study edition and commentary dealing with almost all of the surviving French five-part scores of dance music from the ballets de cour 1575-1651. These full scores are especially important since most ballets from this time are preserved only in two-part readings (melody and bass). The exception here is a newly created five-part score for the ballet des Nations based on an original two-part setting. Also included are the six Allemandes from 1575 to ca. 1600, a ballet cheval of 1615, a selection of miscellaneous entres from several ballets prepared for the concert Louis XIII par les Violons et les 12 Grands Hautbois of 1627, and Philidor's five-part reading of seventeen entres from the ballet du Roy des Fêtes de Bacchus of 1651.
